S O L V E D,

Each of the territory ceded, or to be ceded by individual states, to the United States already purchased, or shall be purchased, of the Indian inhabitants, and offered for sale, shall be divided into distinct states in the following manner, as nearly as may be practicable; that is to say, by parallels of latitude, so that each state shall comprehend two degrees of latitude, beginning to count from the completion of thirty degrees north of the equator; and by meridians of longitude, one of which shall pass through the point of the rapids of Ohio, and the other through the western cape of the great Kanhaway: but the territory eastward of this last meridian, between the great Kanhaway, and Pennsylvania, shall be one state, whatsoever may be its completion. That which may lie beyond the completion of the forty-fifth degree between the meridians shall make part of the state adjoining it on the south: and that part of the territory between the same meridians coinciding nearly with the parallel of thirty-nine degrees shall be substituted so far in lieu of that parallel as a boundary line.

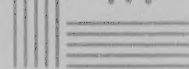

On any territory so purchased and offered for sale, shall, either on their own application, or by order of Congress, receive authority from them, with appointments of time to elect free males of full age, within the limits of their state, to meet together, for the purpose of establishing a temporary government, to adopt the constitution and laws of any of the states; so that such laws nevertheless shall be subject to alteration by their own legislature; and to erect, subject to a like alteration, counties, townships, or other divisions of territory for their legislature.

When such state shall have acquired twenty thousand free inhabitants, on giving due notice to Congress, they shall receive from them authority, with appointments of time to call a convention of representatives, to establish a permanent constitution and government for themselves. Provided that both the temporary and permanent governments be founded on the same principles as their basis.

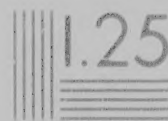

That they shall for ever remain a part of this confederacy of the United States of America, and that they shall be subject to the articles of confederation in all those cases, in which the United States shall be so subject; and to all the acts and ordinances of the United States Congress, conformable thereto.

That they in no case shall interfere with the primary disposal of the soil by the United States Congress assembled; nor with the ordinances and regulations which Congress may enact, respecting the title in such soil to the bona fide purchasers of the same.
